I want to do an interactive/immersive art exhibit. I would showcase digital and installation art. If I have to pick only one, I'll do installation art! I want it to be very colorful while also having the installations be fun and exciting to look at. Something that's pleasing to the eye. Some of the artists' names are Yayoi Kusama, Adam Fabianski, Travis Rice, Li Hongbo, Brut Deluxe, Nike Savvas, and Chiharu Shoita. The show will be located in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. I'll name the gallery 'AstraArts' and then the show will be called 'The Alluring Iridescent.' I want the website to be able to display that same amount of color but not have it too overbearing. Its other color will probably be white to stand out against it. I want it to display some of the art within the show. There of course will be information about the show, where its located, times and dates, artists, and etc.
