The topic I want to do my research project on is Indie games. I want to talk about the history, the genre itself, current games, and popular games. My audience will most likely be gamers. I want the website to give off the indie game vibe, so it should be creative while also being niche in a way. I'll have pictures of different games that I'll talk about and highlight. I might do a mix of both images I find online and some that I design. With that being said, I also might have to design the logo myself if I can't find one that works.
