

For my final project, I want to create a website for a fictional university for the undead that I have already created for another branding project I am working on. The graphics will be mostly illustrative, showing fictional images of what college life and academics would be like at the university. There will be sections for academics, campus life, admissions, tours, and other important information you would find on a college website.

The main audience would be a fictionalized society in which zombies would go to school. The page should look professional but inviting to potential students. I want to provide graphics that match my chosen color scheme but also embody the mascot itself. There is a bit of worldbuilding behind it to make it more realistic. The university already has a set color scheme, some typefaces, mascot, and even a competitor school.
