Complete the following problems using the 96TAB data. Use the blank tables to record your data. Complete the tables and report column percentages only. Answer the questions below based on the results of your analysis. Be sure to include the necessary statistics and key percentages in your written answers.

Q1. Are those who are afraid to walk alone at night more likely to support capital punishment than those who are not afraid?

Q2. Are those who think too little is being spent on law enforcement more likely to support capital punishment than those who think law enforcement spending is about right or too high?

Q3. Are those who are afraid to walk alone at night more likely to think too little is being spent on law enforcement than those who are not afraid?

Q4. Are those who think that men are better suited to politics than women more likely to oppose legal abortion for married women who do not want more children AND more likely to disapprove of married women working than those who do not think men are better for politics?

Q5. Is sex or race more strongly associated with differences in support for abortion (ABANY)?

Q6. Is sex or race more strongly associated with differences in support for capital punishment?
Basic Bivariate Analysis Exercises

Q7. How, if at all, is belief in an afterlife associated with attitudes toward euthanasia?

Q8. Are those who are against requiring gun permits more likely to favor capital punishment than those who favor gun permits?

Q9. Do men and women differ in their attitudes toward spanking?

Q10. Are men more trusting of other people than women?

Q11. Among those respondents who have been married, are those who have ever been divorced or separated more likely to have had extramarital sex than those who have never been divorced or separated?

Q12. Are there sex and or race differences in extramarital sexual behavior?