Project 1

Jillian Buonsignore

Paragraph:

For my first project, I want to showcase some female Graphic Designers. There are a lot of amazing artists and designers in the graphic design world. I picked a set of 5 designers; some are lesser-known artists I just love and some are well-known designers that have inspired me as a designer: Paula Scher, Barbara Kruger, Kristle Marshall, Hannah Pahl, and Gail Anderson. The show would be called "Five Women in Design You Should Know". I think having the show be in a smaller aesthetically pleasing Gallery. That allows the viewers to have a more intimate one-on-one experience with the work being showcased since many of them are text-heavy graphic designs that require more intent observations. I think the Studio Gallery in Washington, DC, would be a good gallery for a show like this. For my website design I think I want to do a clean and simple website with a darker color palette. I want my background to be black, so the pictures of artwork stand out more clearly and without conflict from the web design. I think it would be cool to see if I could get the website to be more interactive, so that visitors could hover over images, and it would pop up with more information about the piece and artist. My website would probably also be a multipage website to include exhibition information, ticket information, and anything else visitors might need to know.
