

My website is going to be a portfolio site with all of my cartoons I have made. The audience is people who are fans of adult swim and like to read online comics. I am showcasing my cartoon artwork. My color scheme for this website will be off white and black because I want to somehow create a hand drawn feel to the website. I will be using the font "delicious handrawn" for the paragraph font and "permanent marker" for titles.

I want my work to say that I have spent time thinking about these cartoons. I want them to seem authentic and irreverent. Questions I will have to answer: "Why the hand drawn approach?" Cartoons are an inherently human thing. I don't want this to seem like other online comics.
