Project 2 Proposal

For my Project two web design I am thinking about doing a “know what you’re ordering” guide for coffee webpage! Before I became a barista, I had no idea what was in lattes or macchiatos or anything like that and after becoming more educated I know exactly what I like! So many people come into my work and have no idea what they are ordering and then leave unhappy so I thought a website like this might be helpful to people who don’t know what they want/like! I love talking about coffee and love making it so I thought this would be a very personal and interesting topic.

The page would be set up like this, an icon or little image linking to a description page about how that drink is made and what goes in it. I would also love to talk about the amount of caffeine in each drink and give tips on what drink to choose depending on what the person is looking for! I would also include teas since some contain caffeine and the different types of teas you can order. I already have most of the info I will need from prior knowledge but want to do a deep dive on espresso and brewed coffee and the difference between the two.
